Accommodations are considered reasonable and will be provided by Warren Wilson College.

Reasonable accommodations:

- Do not negate requirements for successful completion of a program, course, service and/or activity.
- Adhere to generally acceptable standards of behavior, Warren Wilson College's general and academic student rights and responsibilities, and adhere to faculty/staff directions and instructions.
- Do take in consideration the education-related abilities and functional limitations of the student and how those limitations could be overcome with reasonable accommodations.
- Do not alter or change the academic and technical standards required for admission or participation in an education program or service.
- Do not alter or change the purpose and nature of the program, course, and/or service

Accommodations are considered unreasonable and cannot be provided by Warren Wilson College.

Accommodations are considered unreasonable if:

- the educational standards or mission of Warren Wilson College would be substantially altered.
- the nature of the program, course, service and/or activity would be fundamentally altered.
- the student is not otherwise qualified (with or without accommodations) to meet the academic and technical standards required for admission or participation in an education program, course, service and/or activity.
- the effects of the disability cannot be overcome even with reasonable accommodations.
- the student poses a direct threat to the health or safety of self or others.
